Madison-Grant senior Daya Greene is a two-time Class 2A first-team All-State player and has helped lead the Argylls to a 12-2 record so far this season. Greene also became M-G's all-time digs leader against on Aug. 25 at Tipton. Five days later, she set the single-match record with 40 digs at Eastbrook.

Greene digs her way into Madison-Grant record books

By SCOTT HUNT
shunt@chronicle-tribune.com

FAIRMOUNT — Former Madison-Grant volleyball coach Bob Holloway didn't mince words when talking about current Argyll senior, Daya Greene.

"Daya's the best passer we've ever had at Madison-Grant," Holloway opined, on more than one occasion since he retired as Argylls' varsity coach a few years ago.

And it's difficult to argue against Holloway's notion.

Greene is a two-time Class 2A first-team All-State player, a first-team All-Central Indiana Conference performer for three seasons and has been M-G's starting libero since the first match of her freshman season.

Most importantly, Greene's role on the court has been as the backbone of M-G's defense, as an energizer and as a coach on the floor.

Current M-G coach, Kayla Jump, who is Holloway's daughter, uses the phrase "put it on the wall," to her teams as they work towards winning matches, conferences and tournaments.

Recently, Greene put her name on the wall, twice, and into the Madison-Grant record books by doing what she does best in volleyball passing.

At Tipton on Aug. 25, Greene reached 1,251 career digs, which moved her to the top of that list. She broke the 12-year old record previously held by Lauren Stanley Lutton, who had broken Jump's record previously.

Greene then put her name on the wall again by digging up 40 balls against Eastbrook on Aug. 30 to set the single-match record at M-G.

Greene's relationship with Holloway, Jump and Madison-Grant volleyball goes way back, to shortly after she learned to walk.

"My mom used to coach in junior high so me and my sister would go to practice everyday," Greene said, recalling memories from when she was three. "We'd be off in the corner touching a ball and ever since then I've had a volleyball in my hand. Volleyball has run in my family and it's been our go to whenever we're free it's like volleyball, volleyball,"

"Me and my sister used to play every single day in the yard. All I did was work on passing so I was hoping I wasn't a setter," she added with a big smile. "I've played club so I got a lot of touches during the week and on the weekends. I've just worked."

The career digs record came onto Jump and Greene's radar late last season. The single-match record was something Greene had been eyeing since her freshman year, though she was caught off guard when she learned that she'd broken it.

"Freshman year against Northfield I was nine away from one of the records and that's when I thought, I'm beating some of these records. My name is going to be on the wall," Greene said. "I need up there. Having that career (record), and having

C-T intern comes from the bayou to IWU

By SCOTT HUNT

Readers of the Chronicle-Tribune sports section will see a new name in the byline a couple times a week for the next few months.

If you're a fan of Indiana Wesleyan football, it might be a name you already recognize.

Owen Hnatyshyn was brought on staff last week to do an internship with the C-T during the first semester of his senior year at IWU.

HNATYSHYN

Born in Old Jefferson, Louisiana, just outside of New Orleans, Hnatyshyn grew up in and calls Abita Springs, Louisiana his hometown. He attended Saint Paul's Catholic School in Covington, where he was a standout in baseball and football.

So how'd a boy from Louisiana end up as an offensive lineman at Indiana Wesleyan? Especially when baseball is his first love and also gave him an opportunity to play collegiately.

"It was a very, very difficult decision," admitted Hnatyshyn, who had offers to play at Lamar, an FCS school in Texas and Grand View (Iowa), another good NAIA program. "When Indiana Wesleyan talked to me, the impact I got from just the staff in general, it was like I'm going to play football here."

"Up to that point I still had no clue. I wanted to go to Indiana Wesleyan and they're offering me for football so I'm going to go play football."

Hnatyshyn admitted he didn't know anything about the NAIA, really didn't know it was even a thing, until he was contacted by IWU's offensive coordinator, Eric Terrazas via a direct message on Twitter his junior year.

Hnatyshyn said Terrazas filled him in on the NAIA and told him about the budding, quickly growing football program, its culture, and the other opportunities Indiana Wesleyan had to offer.

"I told my dad I really want to go take a visit there and the first week of senior summer we took a visit," Hnatyshyn said, and it was then he first met all

Taylor set for road trip to Division I FCS Butler

By SCOTT HUNT
shunt@chronicle-tribune.com

The Taylor University football team will venture outside of the NAIA realm for a good tune-up to prepare for the upcoming Mid-States Football Association Mid-east League Mideast League stretch that will begin on Oct. 1.

The Trojans will put their 2-0 record on the line with a trip to NCAA Division I FCS Butler in Indianapolis Saturday at 6 p.m.

Taylor has been dominant, particularly on defense in earning an MSFA Mideast win at Lawrence Tech (27-12) to open the season and in a 52-6 win in a league crossover game against Judson last week in Upland.

"It's two games in a row where our defense has really put our offense in a good position, generating turnovers and also offense has got a lot of short fields to work with," said Trojans' coach Aaron Mingo on Thursday. "That's been real positive for us. ... They're not giving away anything easy."

"We're playing with a tremendous amount of discipline right now and our guys are really doing the job of rallying to the football," he added. "We have a lot of showing up and that's one of the reason we're able to generate the turnovers we're getting."

The Trojans defense has forced four turnovers through two weeks, but has also recorded nine quarterback sacks and 18 tackles for loss for a net loss of nearly 170 yards for the opposition.

Mingo said his defense will face its stiffest challenge yet in Butler's offense, mainly due to Bulldog quarterback Bret Bushka.

Bushka is the reigning Pioneer Conference Offensive

Player of the Week after his performance in Butler's season-opening, 31-26 win over St. Thomas (Florida) last week in Indy. The redshirt junior signal caller completed 25-of-35 passes for 309 yards and four touchdowns with one interception. He also led the Bulldogs with 13 carries and 72 yards on the ground.

"We saw him last year. He is a dual threat guy so if things break down he can make you pay, hurt you with his legs," Mingo said of Bushka. "We've got to do a good job of containing him. He'll be the most mobile quarterback that we have faced up to this point of the season.

"They're really well coached so on offense I'm sure there are some things we have not seen from their first game," he added. "They're pretty good a finding ways to get guys open so we have to be very disciplined with our eyes and make sure we're picking up and defending where we're supposed to be."

Bushka's favorite target a week ago was grad student Tyler Adams, who hauled in

Ryan makes his debut for Colts in opener vs. Texans

By KRISTIE RIEKEN

Associated Press

HOUSTON — Matt Ryan is ready for his next challenge as he prepares for his debut with the Indianapolis Colts Sunday against the Houston Texans after spending his entire 14-year career in Atlanta.

And he admitted this week that even after 222 career starts, he still gets fired up for every game.

“Even from when you’re a kid, that first one of the year — there’s just so much build-up to it that’s different than other weeks,” Ryan said. “You’re definitely excited, and obviously for me being in a new spot and a new routine this week, all those things, it feels good that it’s here. I’m ready to go.”

As Ryan tries to help the Colts end a streak of eight straight losses in openers, coach Frank Reich was asked if he thinks the quarterback has something to prove after the Falcons moved on from him.

“I have no doubt he feels like that,” Reich said. “I have no doubt we all feel like that, every one of our players. I hope Matt (Ryan) feels like that.”

He’ll face a familiar foe in new Texans coach Lovie Smith, who was hired this offseason to replace David Culley, who lasted one season. Ryan’s history facing Smith goes all the way back to 2008 when he coached the Bears.

“Having played against him 15 years ago and playing in a new spot and a new routine this week, they are going to be disciplined, they are going to be aggressive with trying to get the ball out,” Ryan said.

“They’ve always done a great job at creating turnovers.”

Smith knows his team will have its hands full in defending Ryan with a revamped secondary that will feature two rookie starters. Third overall pick Derek Stingley will start at cornerback and second-round selection Jalen Pitre is starting at one of the safety positions.

“Played against him quite a few times and he’s been one of the best quarterbacks in our league,” Smith said. “He can make all the throws. ... He knows the game, smart. It’s not like we’re going to trick him an awful lot.”

The Texans are hoping to perform much better against the Colts than they did last year, when they lost two games by a combined score of 62-3.

“Your opener is against a team that really embarrassed you last year,” receiver Brandin Cooks said. “You don’t forget, but you don’t let that cloud and gray affect what you have to get done. You still have to focus on the details and don’t get too carried away on necessarily revenge.”

Taylor time

Defending NFL rushing champion Jonathan Taylor can’t wait for Sunday to arrive. Indy held its workhorse back out of all three preseason games and he hasn’t taken a hit in months.

Taylor, of course, has carried a heavy workload over the past five years — so much so that some draft analysts questioned whether the former Wisconsin star had too much wear and tear on his legs. But he only seems to be getting stronger.

Not only did he post a league-leading 1,811 yards rushing last season, he also led the NFL with 18 touchdown runs and his 20 total TDs were tied with Austin Ekeler for the league high.

“I haven’t played football since January, so I’m really excited to get out there and play,” Taylor said Thursday.

Rookie runner

Rookie fourth-round pick Dameon Pierce used an outstanding camp to climb the depth chart and will start Sunday at running back for Houston.

The hard-running Pierce was so impressive in the preseason that the Texans cut veteran Marlon Mack, who entered camp as the presumed starter. Pierce joined the Texans after a four-year career at Florida where he ran for 1,806 yards and 23 touchdowns.

He’ll try to turn around a running game that has been among the NFL’s worst the past two seasons.

Bob talk about me like he does, it boosts my confidence and now I know.

“I came out here for the career award, then she said (the single-match record) and my heart just stopped. I’ve been wanting that one since my freshman year.”

Jump said she’s been friends with Greene’s parents since before her senior was born, so seeing her put her name on the wall and earn the individual accolades is something the coach is extremely proud about.

“We used to see her running around when she was eight-, nine-, 10-years old and passing better than a lot of the kids ahead of her,” Jump said.

“I said hey if you could be the best passer you’ve ever had. By junior high, we said you’ve got to get with it because you will be. It’s nice to see.

“It doesn’t come natural but she makes it look natural. She’s put in a lot of work,” she added. “She focuses on everything around her and reading to make it happen. It’s great to see her break our records. ... I don’t know if she’ll get up to Maddi Evans’ season record. I hope she does. I hope she clears the board.”

The downside to Greene’s

40-dig night at Eastbrook is that the Argylls lost to the Panthers for the first time in over a decade.

The ties between Eastbrook and M-G run deep. Panther coach Bailie Havens is the older sister of Argyll sophomore Demie Havens. Their dad, Travis Havens, coaches Greene on M-G’s softball team. Eastbrook’s Kayleigh Gross is a cousin to Jump.

So the loss didn’t sit well in the M-G family.

“We we’re really down for a couple days,” Greene said. “Losing to Eastbrook, it’s close, it’s family. You never want to lose to Eastbrook, but we know we play them first in Grant Four, so we’re working hard and trying to get better.”

Greene and senior Alexis Baney, another 2A All-State player a year ago, were the only returning players for M-G to bring much varsity experience into 2022, so they’ve been thrust into an important leadership role.

Even with the loss to Eastbrook, Madison County Tournament play Saturday at Elwood with a 12-2 record.

Jump credits Greene and Baney for not only their performance, but their roles and teachers and mentors for the younger Argylls.

“We’ve always relied on them, now as the only returning players I think there was a little pressure on them,” Jump said. “They’ve looked around at everyone else and kind of said, ‘hey you need to start playing with us.’ It’s a learning opportunity for everyone. They do really well.

“Lexi wants everyone to be great at everything. Daya will help you, but she will also coach you and tell you every shot to make, where you’re supposed to be at. It’s not about them, it’s about we need you to do your part to make everything successful,” she added. “We talked tonight and (Greene) said, ‘if they do not hit the shot I tell them to, I’m going to get really mad.’ I said welcome to coaching.”

the coaches, including head coach Jordan Langs. “My dad and I sat in the office with Coach Langs and he explained their motto and core values. He asked me what my major was and literally within 20 minutes we were over here with Dr. (Randall) King at the time walking around the media truck, showing me around Elder Hall.

“It was really cool to just see everything in depth and how much they were taking it seriously. Obviously I prayed a lot about it,” he added. “I had a couple offers after that, but IWU offered me probably two weeks before my senior year started. I was at football camp when they offered so that was pretty cool.”

Hnatyshyn shared that his mother was diagnosed with breast cancer prior to his senior year of high school, and his connection with IWU’s coaching staff grew even deeper and ultimately helped him settle on coming to Marion.

“When the coaches found out about it, every single coach sent a letter to my house for my mom,” Hnatyshyn said. “I had already prayed about it a lot and felt really called to go here, that was kind of like the cherry on top. They had cared so much to even ask about what was going on in my personal life.”

10 passes for 143 yards and two scores. All four of Butler’s touchdowns last week came in the second half as the Bulldogs rallied back from a 14-3 halftime deficit to earn the win.

Mingo hopes his ball-control style of offense, that’s also showed the ability to strike quickly and from long distance through the air, will limit the opportunities for Butler’s offense.

“Their defense is very disciplined. They’re not out of position and they do a great job of communicating,” Mingo said. “We’ve got to focus on our tempo, which can hopefully get them thinking a little bit more. We’ve got to be efficient getting our four yards every time we run the ball.

“Being able to move the chains will be huge: one it

Hnatyshyn will graduate next spring with a degree in Multi Media Communication with a sports media emphasis. His ultimate goal is to become a commentator.

“I open to really anything media-wise as far as covering sports,” he said. “I want to be a broadcaster at the end of the day. I’ll broadcast anything, but my first love is baseball. I know the ins and outs of baseball. My video game hours, it’s mostly baseball. I could be a baseball coach. I just love baseball.”

Hnatyshyn was signed up to broadcast some baseball for IWU last spring, but snow outs took away those chances.

As far as adjustments to moving from the Deep South to the Midwest, winter was one of the biggest for Hnatyshyn. He said he saw snow about three times growing up in Louisiana, but nothing compared to what his first winter in Indiana provided.

“When it really hit me was when I got back from Christmas break my freshman year. That was rough because it was freezing cold,” Hnatyshyn said. “In Louisiana, if they even thought roads were going to freeze over, school was cancelled for two days.

“We got like six inches of snow, I knew school wouldn’t be cancelled but I’m walking around campus in my duck boots trying to trudge to class and was like this is ridic-will keep that ball out of their hands and two it will wear them down hopefully wear them down throughout the course of the game.”

Mingo said it’s been business as usual for the Trojans as they try to start 3-0 for the first time in more than 15 years.

“We’ve had a solid week of practice. We are continually making progress and doing what we need to do to prepare for Saturday,” Mingo said. “Our ones are playing really solid right now and our twos and threes continue to get better and better which is providing a lot of quality depth we can throw in there and trust on a Saturday.”

Taylor will play in Turner Stadium the next two weeks. Trinity International visits Sept. 17 and Olivet Nazarene comes to Upland Sept. 24. Both games are scheduled to kick off at 7 p.m.
